WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC. 21, 1864.

News of To-Day.

The most important intelligence received by telegraph to-day is of the capture of Fort Hood, near Nashville, by the army under Thomas. The details of this brilliant engagement, as given by Secretary Stanton in the night of December 16th, fixed it as the day he drew his right wing from the river near Nashville, and took a position south where it has been carefully prepared for the contingency. The first line, when attacked by our forces, was easily carried, but the second was overcome only upon the third assault, when twenty pieces of artillery were captured, the enemy forced back five miles, many prisoners captured, Hood's army divided into two parts, and each pursued by an overwhelming force in their retreat. So says Secretary Stanton; while another official report from General Thomas claims that our own loss was surprisingly small and the victory complete. General Smith's corps alone captured two thousand prisoners, and other corps were said to have taken their proportion. The total number of guns captured, according to the statement of General Thomas, is thirty, and the number of prisoners taken is not definitely named, but said to be in excess of first reports. It states that the woods and intrenchments were strewn with the small arms of the routed rebel army. General Thomas goes on to particularize the conduct of individual corps and their commanders, and fixes our own loss at three hundred.

Sherman had reached Savannah, driven the enemy in after a battle, as reported by Hood on Monday, and having carried Fort McAllister by storm, was besieging Savannah with every prospect of success. Gen. Foster officially announces the capture of the fort, and dates his dispatch from it, having joined Sherman there after its capture. Foster announces Sherman's army to be in first rate condition, having lived well thirteen days on turkeys, yellow-leg chickens and the fat of the land in Georgia. The surrender of Savannah would be demanded in two days, and in failure to yield his batteries would open on the place. The announcement of the capture was premature but there is no doubt of the result, even should they decide upon the defence of the place. A letter from Sherman is given, dated Nov. 24, from Kingston, Ga., stating his intention to be at the sea coast by Christmas. He seems to have made better time than he anticipated.

We have accounts of a large fleet leaving Hampton Roads bound South—steamers and transports with monitors in tow of the steamers—no doubt indicating a great naval and military movement in progress, from which we shall hear in time.

A naval expedition up the Roanoke river met rebel torpedoes in its way and three of our vessels were destroyed by them. The river is said to be full of them, and the fleet were taking many out. This news is the only disaster we have to announce. Good tidings are accumulating fast, and we are told of successful expeditions in Louisiana, the capture of Bristol, Va., acknowledgement by the rebels of serious loss at Franklin, and an unexpected attack by them on Mobile.

Frozen Up.—The closing of the Columbia river has prevented communication with the upper country, and cut us off from a source of interesting news. The cold weather ensued upon us earlier than usual by some weeks, and we begin to have some faith in the words of prophecy, uttered in different quarters of a severe winter.

No doubt our whole State is much better than in former years prepared for a serious winter, as our farmers have made advances in matters peculiarly necessary to their welfare, and have learned to prepare for their stock some reliable support through an inclement season, and will not suffer such loss as occurred last years since. It is some satisfaction to note as one of the evidences of material progress, the solid improvements in husbandry, the increased productions of the State not only in the raising of grain for sale and export, and the general improvement of farming fields and homes, but the storing of barns with full supplies of winter feed for stock. Still there is no doubtless very many unprovided for, they should be—improvident persons whose loss or experience benefit their neighbors, but are a burden upon themselves.

Still we trust that winter, however severe it may prove, will be a season of general health and enjoyment, and not of suffering. The clear cold air makes to order the sluggish blood, quickens the step, and enjoyment of the fireside at home. Many of us hail winter as our early friend, and the steel of the skater rings over the crackling surface of our neighboring ponds in response to his shout of exhilarating enjoyment of the sport. Sleds are busy using useless ice, and could the heavy frozen have been preceded by a fall of snow sufficient to constitute good sleighing, Christmas would no doubt have been a merry season, and if the clouds portend anything, may prove so as it is, though at the expense of the first named branch of genuine winter sport. Winter has its uses after all, and that's cent beginning of to-day has an agreeable contrast to the rain storms of but yesterday.

The Fair of the Christian Commission is probably the greatest success ever attained by such an effort in the State, and fully crowns the wishes of all concerned. Very many attended during the day to partake of lunch, and in the evening the Turn Verein Hall was densely packed during the Old Folks' Concert and Readings of Miss Lester. Mr Wyatt as leader of the Church of Justice as well as from his well earned reputation as we would naturally expect, and the singing of the glee and patriotic songs, was itself a treat to listen to worth more to enjoy than the price of admission. The gaily and costumes of the gentlemen and ladies tastefully carried out each in the dress of different grandfathers, and grandmothers of high order. With Mrs. Elisha Corbett, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Randall and Mrs. Holbrook, and the efficient aid of gentlemen whose name we cannot all now call to mind, will give it eclat.

Miss Lester rendered several sentimental and pathetic pieces, and acted to perfection, and added to the entertainment of numerous relatives, the part of Widow Bedott. All were delighted, and will be seen to go again to-morrow night and no doubt, the house will be as full as it can hold.

John Mitchell.—This notorious Irish refugee is the Commissioner of the rebel fleet in the James river. 93 say deserter.

Last Night's Dispatches.

New York, Dec. 14.—A Nassau dispatch, dated the 12th, says that Gen. Wright, commanding the district of Savannah, was in command of the rebel forces at Savannah, and had with him Hardee's corps, Cheatham's corps, and Stevenson's corps, and Lee's cavalry. Hood's army was said to be in the vicinity of Florence, Ala., and Beauregard was in command of the whole. Gen. Wright was reported to have said that he would hold Savannah at all hazards.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Admiral Porter reports to the Navy Department that Fort Fisher was attacked by the fleet on the 13th, and that the fleet silenced the fort, and that the troops landed and carried the fort by assault. Our loss was 110 killed and 536 wounded. The rebel loss is unknown.

Instrument—Certificate was laid on our table, and I telegraph company is of importance, and will be read with interest by evening the city was thrown into great excitement. First, a report circulated that the Empire City Fire Company No. 1 were ordered to Front street, and a brawl ensued. Then a crowd creating a disturbance on Alder street, the fire department in full haste to the scene of excitement. When the Constable of the sidewalk on First street, and after him a lot of furniture in front of a liquor saloon, knocked for a couple of days at the door, in front of a liquor saloon, and a shot was fired. The alarm and a shot was fired. The alarm and a shot was fired. The alarm

Maud Muller

(As read by Hale Lester at the Carolina Commencement last year.)

Maud Muller on a summer's day
Raked the meadow sweet with hay.

Beneath her torn hat glowed the wealth
Of simple beauty and rustic health.

Singing she wrought, and her merry glee
The mock-bird echoed from his tree.

But when she glanced to the far-off town,
White from its hill-top looking down,

The sweet song died, and a vague unrest
And a nameless longing filled her breast—

A wish that she hardly dared to own
For something better than she had known.

The Judge rode slowly down the lane,
Smoothing his horse's chestnut mane.

He drew his bridle in the shade
Of the apple-trees, to greet the maid,

And ask a draught from the spring that flowed
Through the meadow across the road.

She stopped where the cool spring bubbled up,
And filled for him her small tin cup,

And blushed as she gave it, looking down
On her feet so bare, and her tattered gown.

"Thanks!" said the Judge, "a sweeter draught
From a fairer hand was never quaffed."

He spoke of the grass and flowers and trees,
Of the singing birds and the humming bees:

Then talked of the haying, and wondered whether
The cloud in the west would bring foul weather.

And Maud forgot her brier-torn gown,
And her graceful ankles bare and brown;

And listened while a pleased surprise
Looked from her long-lashed hazel eyes.

At last, like one who for delay
Seeks a vain excuse, he rode away.

Maud Muller looked and sighed: "Ah, me!
That I the Judge's bride might be!

"He would dress me up in silks so fine,
And praise and toast me at his wine.

"My father should wear a broadcloth coat;
My brother should sail a painted boat.

"I'd dress my mother so grand and gay,
And the baby should have a new toy each day.

"And I'd feed the hungry and clothe the poor,
And all should bless me who left our door."

The Judge looked back as he climbed the hill,
And saw Maud Muller standing still.

"A form more fair, a face more sweet,
Ne'er hath it been my lot to meet.

"And her modest answer and graceful air
Show her wise and good as she is fair.

"Would she were mine, and I to-day,
Like her, a harvester of hay!

"No doubtful balance of rights and wrongs,
Nor weary lawyers with endless tongues,

"But low of cattle and song of birds,
And health and quiet and loving words."

But he thought of his sisters proud and cold,
And his mother vain of her rank and gold.

So, closing his heart, the Judge rode on,
And Maud was left in the field alone.

But the lawyers smiled that afternoon,
When he hummed in court an old love-tune;

And the young girl mused beside the well,
Till the pain on the unraked clover fell

He wedded a wife of richest dower,
Who lived for fashion, as he for power.

Yet oft in his marble hearth's bright glow,
He watched a picture come and go:

And sweet Maud Muller's hazel eyes
Looked out in their innocent surprise.

Oft, when the wine in his glass was red,
He longed for the wayside well instead:

And closed his eyes on his garnished rooms,
To dream of meadows and clover blooms.

And the proud man sighed with a secret pain,
"Ah, that I were free again!

"Free as when I rode that day,
Where the barefoot maiden raked her hay."

She wedded a man unlearned and poor,
And many children played round her door.

And oft, when the summer sun shone hot
On the new-mown hay in the meadow lot,

And she heard the little spring brook fall
Over the roadside through the wall,

In the shade of the apple-tree again
She saw a rider draw his rein,

And, gazing down with timid grace,
She felt his pleased eyes read her face.

Sometimes her narrow kitchen walls
Stretched away into stately halls;

The weary wheel to a spinet turned,
The tallow candle an astral burned,

And for him who sat by the chimney log,
Dozing and grumbling o'er pipe and mug,

A manly form at her side she saw,
And joy was duty and love was law.

Then she took up her burden of life again,
Saying only, "It might have been."

Alas for maiden, alas for Judge,
For rich repiner and household drudge!

God pity them both! and pity us all,
Who vainly the dreams of youth recall.

For of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these: "It might have been!"

Ah, well! for us all some sweet hope lies
Deeply buried from human eyes;

And, in the hereafter, angels may
Roll the stone from its grave away!

DATES TO DECEMBER 17.

CAPTURE OF SAVANNAH!

FORT MC'ALLISTER TAKEN

Junction of Sherman with the Fleet.

Union and Rebel Accounts.

ANOTHER VICTORY IN TENNESSEE.

Hood's Army Cut in Two and in Full Retreat.

Twenty Guns Taken.

Remnant of Jackson's Division Taken.

Departure of a Large Fleet on an Expedition South

Union Vessels Blown up by Torpedoes.

The facts, says the World's correspondent, have been carefully concealed by the rebel authorities. The greatest consternation prevailed at Charleston. Last news left Sherman close to the coast, and either to form junction with Foster and the fleet, or attack Savannah, with prospect of success.

HILTON HEAD, 13th.—Capt. Duncan, one of Gen. Howard's aids, has just come in having descended the Ogeechee in a small boat. He left the army on the evening of the 9th; Sherman's whole army was then within ten miles of Savannah, and advancing to attack enemy's works, five miles from the city. They were probably attacked yesterday, Sunday 11th, as heavy firing was heard in that direction. Capt. Duncan reports the army in the best possible position, and very little opposition has been met with on the march. The enemy could not tell which route the army would take. The army lived on the country, and had accumulated a considerable number of horses and cattle.

The following telegram was brought by Capt. Duncan:

Head-Quarters Army of Tennessee, near Savannah, Dec. 9th.—We have met with perfect success thus far. The troops are in fine spirits and near by. Signed, HOWARD.

Commanding the right wing of the army.

Another dispatch brought by Capt. Duncan gives direction to the chief signal officer of the fleet, and requests that a good look out be kept for signals.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—A bearer of dispatches from Admiral Dahlgreen arrived this evening. He brought the following dispatches to the Secretary of the Navy:

FLAG SHIP PHILADELPHIA, Port Royal, Dec. 12.—To Gideon Welles, Secretary—It is my happiness to announce the Department that General Sherman, with his army, is near Savannah and I am in communication with him. In view of his probable arrival I had stationed several steamers at different points and had come from Tallahassy yesterday in order to be at hand.

Capt. Duncan, states that our forces were in contact with the rebels a few miles outside of Savannah. He says Sherman's army is not in want of anything. (Signed) DAHLGREEN.

The following is extract from a letter from Sherman, written before he started upon his march, shows not only that he reached the point at which he aimed, but accomplished the work some days earlier than he expected.

KINGSTON, Ga., Nov. 3.—In a few days I will be off for salt water and hope to meet my old friend D. D. Porter again. Will you be kind enough to write him and tell him to look for me on or about Christmas between Hilton Head and Savannah?

(Signed) SHERMAN.

That Sherman had captured Savannah before the steamer which brought the above despatches had fairly got out of sight of Port Royal is probable, from the fact that the messenger who reached here this morning, says, when coming out of the harbor and when too late to communicate by signals, the whole fleet began to fire a salute and the vessels were being gaily decorated with flags in honor of some great victory. The opinion on board the steamer was that since she left the port news had reached the Admiral that Savannah had fallen.

PHILADELPHIA, 15th.—The evening Telegraph has the following special dispatch, dated Washington, 15th, which says another scout has arrived from Sherman's army with dispatches to the President. He reports that Savannah was captured on the 10th.

BALTIMORE, 16th.—The American's Annapolis special dispatch says: The steamer Horizon has just arrived with news that Sherman had captured Savannah with 15,000 prisoners, after eight hours fighting.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Richmond papers of to-day confirm the reported capture of Bristol, Virginia, by an expedition supposed to be under command of Stoneman and Burbridge. They also contain an official report of the battle of Franklin, Tenn., in which Hood acknowledges the loss of many gallant officers and men, among whom he mentions Gens. P. Johnson, Williams and Granbly killed; Maj. Gen. John Brown, and Brig. Gens. S. Carter, Wright, Quarles, Cockerell and Scott, wounded. The papers also state that on Wednesday, the 14th, Sherman carried Fort McAllister, commanding the entrance to the Ogeechee river, by storm, and that the capture of this position put Sherman in communication with the Yankee fleet, necessitating reinforcements for Savannah. Up to this hour, 8.30 P. M., nothing has been heard from Sherman later than the inked papers' report of the capture of Fort McAllister.

STANTON.

(Signed)

OFF CAPE HENRY, TUESDAY, Dec. 13.—A large fleet of war vessels, accompanied by land forces in transports, left Hampton Roads this morning, moving in a southerly direction. The larger portion of the army transport left during the night. At the writing, the flag ship Malvern and several larger vessels of the fleet, are in the Roads, but as sailing orders have been signalled, they will probably get under way in a short time. The single-turreted monitors went out in tow of the steamers. The Ironsides and the double-turreted monitors propelled themselves. Thus far we have been favored with fine weather. A light wind is blowing from off shore. Every indications seem to point to a north-easter before we arrive at our journey's end.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Official dispatches from General Canby, show the complete success of an expedition sent by him from Vicksburg to co-operate with Sherman's operations by cutting Hood's communications with Mobile. Canby reports the perfect success of another expedition, sent from Baton Rouge, Louisiana, under the command of General Davidson, the details and object of which are not now specified. When last heard from, Davidson was reported as having reached quite a point in Mobile and was said to be devastating the country generally.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The Sunday Sun, from New Orleans, Dec. 10th, has arrived. She says off Dauphin Island, on the 7th, a fleet of steamers steering southward passed General Davidson's great raid from Baton Rouge, who had been heard from. He reached Tangipahoa, La., Nov. 30, burned a pontoon bridge, destroyed a railroad depot, capturing a large number of horses, and carried away an immense number of horses. Mobile papers, of Dec. 5th, say that he was marching upon that city.

NEW YORK, 17.—The Richmond Whig, of Dec. 14th, says Gen. Smith had returned to our extensive works from Georgia. Sherman and Foster are without detachable reinforcements in the vicinity of Savannah, and between the two their chances of the final extermination look to be certain, but he fights to the last.

The Examiner of Dec. 14th, says that up to yesterday afternoon, Hood was fighting had taken place between Sherman's army and the Ogeechee or the troops within the defenses of Savannah.

A correspondent of the same paper of Savannah is now invested than Richmond, and we have no evidence that it is in the least danger from assault or siege. An official dispatch of yester-
